Denies Alleged Assault Charge

Warren Barber, aged 18, is charged with attempted assault upon Mary Zeiner, aged 18, according to an affidavit filed by the father, Marshal A. Zetner of Jamestown. The alleged assault is supposed to have happened in an auto in front of the Springfield city hospital.

Mr. Barber had driven Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Ridgway and their niece, Mary Zeiner, to Springfield on Tuesday where Mr. Ridgway entered the hospital for treatment. The boy and girl were left in the car and it was upon the return of Mrs. Ridgway that she claimed to have found them struggling. The side curtains of the car had been put on owing to a light shower of rain. The air in the front fire was down and Mr. Barker claimed that they were fussing over the pump, but Mrs. Ridgway holds that the story told by the girl does not support that claim. The machine was driven home by the young man and no complaint made so far as he knew until the arrest on the demand of the girl's father. The alleged offense having been committed in Clark county it was necessary for the father to file the affidavit in Judge Marcus Shoup, Mr. J. C. Barber, the boy's father, appeared with the young man and Judge Davis release him on bond, the hearing to be held next Thursday.

That the charges are false will be contention of young Barber at the hearing. He holds that a man from Osborn sat in another auto not ten

Uddorn sat in another gate not ten feet away and facing the Ridgway machine. Much of the time was spent in conversing with him and it was he who told him of the flat tire. He was attempting to get the pump from under the rear seat when Mrs. Ridgway approached the car and states that no mention of the charges were made to him until he reached home. The machine was within a few feet of the front on Considering the Ant.

A sapper of effectiveness is the habit of thinking ourselves busy, says the Nevada Post. His confusion of thought is a certain preventive of accomplishment. The ant which frantically runs up a grass stem and then runs down again is doubtless racking his nervous system with the idea that he is busy, but he is gathering no food for the colony.

Polygamy in the Doll House.
"You've had this sailorboy doll a long time, Annie," said a mother to her little daughter, "and the sailor's little girl is ill; and hasn't any doll to play with. Don't you want to send her your sailorboy?" "I'd rather she had any one of the others," was the surprising answer. "You see, mamma, that's the only man we have in the family, and he's married to all the other dolls."—Youth's Companion.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

The management of LaVina Theatre wishes to take this opportunity to thank the patrons and Friends of our theatre for their interest and patronage, and also to assure them that every effort is being made to produce the best service that can be secured.

On Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday night we will continue to show the splendid United Film, and on Wednesday nights we will show a Famous Players production of from 4 to 6 reel-stories featuring Carlyle Blackwell, Mary Pickford, John Barrymore and many other stars of the movies. We have also made arrangements to have entirely new music each night. So come with us and rest your mind and body from the cares and toil of the busy world just for a little while. Will you?

Serious Charge Against Ellis.

John R. Ellis, aged 18 of South Solon, a farm hand for Clifford Lemmon, was placed under arrest this morning on an alleged charge of assault against the six-year old daughter of Mr. Lemmon. Information as to the character of the assault was obtained by the mother.

Ellis admitted his guilt when up before Magistrate Jackson, who bound him over to court.

The fellow has been employed by Lemmon since December and was trusted about the home without any suspicion of wrong doing.

Protected Hay Entrance.
For convenience in drawing hay into the barn the porch shown herewith will be found very satisfactory. The boom from which the hayfork tangle is suspended extends all the way out to the gate end of the porch. Convenient dimensions for this porch are ten feet each way. This will enable the very largest forkful of hay to be taken in without choking the entrance. As shown, the porch should be closed with a door hung from hinges above, held in place when closed by ropes attached to the lower corners and fastened on the inside of the barn when the door is shut. The chief advantages of this plan are that the hay tangle is always under cover, so there is no warping of the wooden supports, rusting of the metal nor rotting of the rope. The roof above the porch need not extend more than four or five feet beyond the main roof of the barn. The large dimension is the better—Orange Judd Farmer.

Selection of Good Seed Corn.
Demonstration work with corn conducted at the New Jersey station has clearly shown the value of securing good seed. During the past two years the seed has been the cause of difference in yield of five to twenty bushels an acre and even more in several tests.

The first point to consider in selecting seed corn is maturity. As corn must be acclimated to a region before the best results can be obtained, it is not wise to use seed from another locality, even that grown in another section of the state. It is better to secure seed from a neighbor producing the best corn in the community.

It is difficult at New Jersey to produce good seed corn because each farmer produces a different variety of a different strain of the same variety. Another important factor in selection is a pure strain. This may easily be determined by the color of each ear and the color of individual grains in each ear. Other points to be considered are size and shape of the ear, straightness of rows, length of kernel, variety of kernel as shown by the germ and color of cob.

"The Top of the Morning."

There is beauty in the old Irishman's greeting that wishes one "the top of the morning," which few of us are able to comprehend. The Irishman, with his fresh, sweet sound of soul-to-soul and unfaded air, the invigoration of body and spirit, the impulse to start with the birth of the day to do all things well until the sundown brings its rest and happy reverie and "depths of incommunicable dreams"—if you go a-walking in "the top of the morning," ready to be guided by nature, all these wholesome influences will come to you, and every hundred yards of the way will find you stepping out more jauntily and with a lighter heart.—London Mail.

Might Be Worse.

Murphy was rambling over the boulevard one afternoon when he met a friend who was trudging along as painfully as if he had been in collision with a road roller.

"Rheumatism," answered the friend in reply to Murphy's question. "Caught cold and every bloomin' bone in my body aches to beat the band."

"Hard luck, old man," sympathized Murphy, "but it might be a whole lot worse."

"Might be a whole lot worse?"

"Yes," was the philosophic rejoinder of Murphy. "Just suppose you were a shad."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Breaking the News.

Mrs. Bingo (severely)—I should like to know where you were last night.

Bingo—Well, if the truth must be told, I was playing chess with Kingley, and, my dear, the last game I bet him a new bonnet for you against a new bonnet for his wife.

Mrs. Bingo—Yes, my dear, and who won?

Bingo—Well, you just wait until you see his wife next Sunday!—Exchange.

"You write in too solemn a way, young man," said the editor to the new reporter. "Try to be more crisp and humorous in your style."

That evening a fire broke out in a butcher's shop in the town, and the new member of the staff reported it as follows: "Mr. William Bricket, the well known butcher, has been losing flesh rapidly of late."—London Express.

A LATE SUMMER SUGGESTION

Chintz as a Fabric For Dresses is Meeting With Much Favor.

Now we are quite used to chintz as a fabric for home decoration, and most of us are well acquainted with the beauties of this dainty fabric. But only a clever woman would think of dressing herself in the same fabric in which she decorates her furniture and windows. And yet chintz as a dress material is altogether delightful, having cheapness as well as beauty to recommend it.

A chintz chosen for a gown is in one of the new Polart designs, with a white background, upon which black lines in check design are drawn. A tiny red and a tiny purple flower fill the white squares. The skirt is made quite plain like a tennis model and comfortably full, so that walking in it

THE HOLY LAND.

Palestine is Steeped in Atmosphere of Legend and Marvel.

Palestine is a country poor in any natural resources. There are practically no minerals, no coal, no iron, no copper, no silver, though recently some oil wells have been discovered in the Jordan valley. Neither are there any large forests, and though the land may have been better wooded in the days of Joshua than it is now, there is little reason to think that the woods were of trees sufficiently large to constitute a source of wealth. A comparatively small area is fit for tillage. To an Arab tribe that had wandered for forty years through a barren wilderness, Canaan may well have seemed a delightful possession, but many a country in Iowa, many a department in France could raise more grain or wine than all the holy land.

NEW AND NATTY BELTS.

Black and White Has Invaded the Domain of Belts.

The lower two belts shown in this illustration are made of white kid and are stamped in black in a checker-board or black design. They come in various patterns and in several widths.

THREE DAINY ACCESSORIES.

The third or top belt is a striking white kid belt, decorated with narrow stitched bands of black suede in two widths. Two stitched straps of the white kid with covered buckle ends form the fastening.

Hint For Buttonholes.

When working buttonholes on bias material or goods which ravel, first starch the material stiff and then iron dry. The material will then stretch not ravel.

The Professor's Wife (to the Professor, who has just come in from a walk): "What have you done with your umbrella and fido?" The Professor (trying to remember): "What—h'm—wait a minute—oh, yes, precisely. You see, my hat blew off, and I didn't want to have the poor little beast run with me after it, so I stuck the umbrella in the ground somewhere and tied fido to it. I suppose they are still there."

Not At All.
When the wind propels a hat it is chased, but the remarks of the owner are nothing that even sounds like that.
